Root causes: On India's youth crisis

“ Superficial exam fixes fail to address India's underlying education and employment crises.

17 August 26, 2026 · 2 min read

DAILY EDITORIAL READER

It has been a few weeks since the youth agitation¹ forced the resignation of then Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan. The government conceded the students' demands for examination reform, which found an echo in the Prime Minister's Independence Day address, when he announced free online coaching for competitive examinations using India's digital public infrastructure. MoSPI's survey data bears out why this would be welcome to students — private coaching costs 16% of what an Indian family spends on a child's education, against 12.5% in 2018, and nearly a quarter of that budget by the higher secondary years which is when the student prepares for competitive exams. Cheaper coaching is of limited value as quality professional education remains confined to⁵ a handful of institutions. For instance, over 22 lakh candidates appeared in this year's medical entrance exam for about 1.4 lakh undergraduate seats with fewer than 10,000 of them at the top 50 colleges. The situation is similar to the Joint Entrance Examination for engineering colleges. That is perhaps why, for the first time since the All India Survey on Higher Education began in 2011, undergraduate enrolment⁶ fell by 93,322 in 2023-24, particularly among young men. The fall was the sharpest in Uttar Pradesh, where The Hindu's analysis found undergraduate enrolment⁶ down 1.53 lakh even as diploma enrolment⁶ rose 1.38 lakh. An analysis of Periodic Labour Force Survey unit-level data found that of every 100 graduates aged 15 to 29 in 2025, only 26 were in regular salaried employment, and just four had a salaried job with a contract and social security⁷. The youth employment crisis therefore has two ends — in the preparation for jobs, and in jobs themselves. Mere free coaching would address neither.

The structural⁸ problems in the Indian economy, despite the government's touting of 6%-6.5% growth, are now too obvious to ignore. Manufacturing, the job sector best placed to absorb¹⁰ India's college graduates, remains at around a sixth of gross value added, nowhere near the quarter of the economy the government has long promised. Meanwhile, the private sector has been retreating from its task as corporate investment has fallen from 17.3% of GDP in 2007-08 to 10.3% in 2024-25, unmoved by¹² the cut in corporate tax from 30% to 22% in 2019. The steps required of the Union government are clear: public investment in industrial capacity¹³, support for industry disciplined by¹⁴ export performance rather than domestic protection, and tempering a regulatory¹⁷ and enforcement zeal¹⁸ that seems to selectively target enterprises, affecting the jobs-catering medium-sized companies in particular. This route has a better chance of delivering jobs for the youth at the scale needed and as countries such as Vietnam have shown.

Escape velocity: On what India's space sector must focus on

“India must shift focus from historic pride to competitive, cost-effective space launch capabilities.”

17 August 26, 2026 · 2 min read

DAILY EDITORIAL READER

For much of the 20th century, a rocket tearing a white seam through the sky did for India roughly what football did for Argentina and Brazil. Nations shut out of² the councils where economic and strategic weight was measured found, in a game of European origin, an arena where their poverty did not disqualify them. Mastery was open to anyone with nerve and skill. Space was other things but also India's football. A famished³, newly independent republic that could barely feed itself nevertheless chose to gamble on⁴ rockets and atomic piles — an expensive bet on a future it could not yet see. In that era of a controlled economy and state broadcaster monopoly, a launcher rising was its own justification. The utility of its payload⁷ was secondary, in the eyes of the masses, to the veneer⁶ of technological competency. Today, rockets and satellites are no longer emblems; they are the plumbing of the information age, the unglaorous scaffolding⁹ beneath navigation, banking, weather and war. On the third National Space Day — the anniversary of Chandrayaan-3's touchdown in the lunar south polar region — Prime Minister Narendra Modi urged 20 space-startup founders to build an “aura” that would draw the world's talent to India. But that might be a wrong framing married to¹⁰ the old view of space. A private space sector cannot harvest success merely because its wares¹¹ are called rockets and launch vehicles; the romance that carried the state programme will not carry a business.

A recent peer-reviewed¹² analysis in Economics Letters by Alessio Terzi and Francesco Nicoli finds that it cost $13,302 to loft¹³ a kilogram into low-earth orbit on an Indian rocket in 2025 — costlier than China ($5,809), Japan, Russia, Europe and the United States ($3,225), and well above the global average of $3,868. That is because India launches too rarely and uneconomically to rapidly build the required reputation for reliability. There were only five launches in 2025, against the 30 that were projected¹⁴. The consequence is visible. GSAT-N2, at 4,700 kg too heavy for ISRO's LVM-3, went up on a Falcon 9; Pixxel and Digantara — two of the 20 at Mr. Modi's meeting — rode SpaceX to orbit. SpaceX alone put three-quarters of the world's payload⁷ into orbit in 2025, underlining its near monopolistic stranglehold¹⁵ but also pointing to opportunities. The value of India's space sector can no longer rely on¹⁶ aura but in jobs, in long-term capital and the tax revenues that follow and, in heavy-lift launches that undercut¹⁷ SpaceX and China. Moon bases with NASA and interplanetary¹⁹ reveries belong to the new imagination of space, and they matter — but they are the ornament²⁰, not the engine.

EXECUTIVE PERSPECTIVE

PRAGMATIC

"practical and realistic"

The author adopts a pragmatic and critical tone to argue that romantic national pride is insufficient for sustaining India's modern space ambitions. High launch costs and low operational frequency currently weaken India's commercial viability compared to global players like SpaceX. The editorial emphasizes that commercial success, jobs, and launch efficiency must replace mere symbolical aura.

In Pune, a stage and a space, new and old

“Rahul Gandhi champions progressive gender discourse while Congress slips into dated political tokenism.”

17 August 26, 2026 · 2 min read

DAILY EDITORIAL READER

Speaking to an audience of young women from a Pune stage, Leader of the Opposition Rahul Gandhi said women should not be defined by their relationships with men because they belong to themselves. He spoke of routinised¹ violence, including the “violence of denied opportunities”, and the “various forms of control” women are subjected to² daily. The formulations were not new — what was new and found resonance⁴ in the auditorium was that they were being articulated from a mainstream political stage, and Gandhi made room, on that stage, for women to tell their own stories. Of course, the Congress leader was not just tweaking the woman-unfriendly script in a male-dominated politics. He also used the post-Jantar Mantar occasion to make a jab at⁸ a political opponent pushed on the defensive⁹. His mention of the Manusmriti, and UP Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath’s almost immediate counter-strike¹⁰, showed that the mark had not been missed. But overall, the Pune performance opened up a space that, ironically, had once been made visible by Narendra Modi. In his very first 1-day address as Prime Minister in 2014, he asked why parents who impose restrictions on their daughters use a different yardstick¹¹ for their sons: Have they ever asked their sons what they are doing, where they are going?

But if Rahul Gandhi struck a different note in Pune, his party, in its CWC resolution, harked back to an older format of politics. The party will not sing all six stanzas of ‘Vande Mataram’, the resolution said, only two verses, as it had decided to do in 1937. The old-ness of Congress’s new position comes not just from its attempt to turn back the clock¹⁴. It comes, also, from the fact that it follows a stale¹⁵ Congress pattern —of scoring a secular point without really working for it. After all, what stopped the party from opposing the amendment that gives ‘Vande Mataram’ the same statutory¹⁶ protections as the national anthem, in Parliament? In the Lok Sabha, the law was cleared by voice vote¹⁷ in only about 15 minutes, after only two members spoke on it, and DMK was the only party that registered its criticism. Now, why does Congress not challenge the law in court, instead of sullenly¹⁸ refusing to sing? And what’s the playbook¹⁹ for its three CMs for official functions?

Congress’s new and old politics comes at a time when the success of the students’ agitation is still rippling across parties. The crowds at Jantar Mantar have left behind a sense of new possibilities — and a dare for mainstream parties. The young have asserted their presence, they want to be heard, all parties must find new ways of seeing, new ways of listening, new ways of speaking.

ANALYTICAL
"carefully evaluating"

EXECUTIVE PERSPECTIVE

The author adopts an analytical tone to contrast Rahul Gandhi's progressive engagement with women in Pune against the Congress party's regression into outdated political posturing. The editorial critiques the party's habit of scoring superficial ideological points over the national song while failing to wage meaningful legislative battles. It concludes that emergent youth movements demand genuine institutional introspection and bold engagement rather than obsolete political playbooks.

Warmer oceans are sounding a warning

“Surging ocean temperatures demand urgent adaptation strategies to protect vulnerable coastal regions and infrastructure.”

DAILY EDITORIAL READER

The world's oceans are usually at their warmest in March and April. In March 2024, global sea-surface temperature simmered¹ to a record 21.09 degrees Celsius. That high was surpassed² last week. On August 22, a rapidly intensifying El Niño and global warming combined to spike marine temperature to 21.1 degrees Celsius. The new record, along with the upending³ of the ocean calendar, is a warning: Global heating is moving climate into unfamiliar territory⁴. The last two months' data indicates that what happened on August 22 was not an anomaly⁵. June's average sea surface temperature across the extra-polar oceans was the highest ever recorded for that month. The July record was also surpassed². By July 31, the oceans had heated to 0.04 degrees below the previous all-time high.

The oceans are among the greatest buffers against⁶ climate change. According to the IPCC and NASA, oceans absorbed more than 90 per cent of the excess heat generated by global warming and helped to delay its most catastrophic consequences. But this sequestering⁷ influence has come at a cost⁸. Warming places stress on marine ecosystems, disrupts food webs. It also affects the oceans' capacity to regulate weather. A heatwave has overwhelmed Europe this summer, several parts of India experienced floods even though the monsoon was erratic⁹, and unseasonal snowfall disrupted life in South America. Ocean warming also contributes to¹⁰ sea-level rise. By the end of 2025, global average sea level was about 11 centimetres higher than in January 1993.

Every climate record strengthens the case for mitigation¹¹ — cutting fossil-fuel consumption, accelerating the transition to clean energy and reducing greenhouse-gas emissions. That imperative¹² remains important. However, even as emission reduction plans become more ambitious, adaptation to weather vagaries¹³ — which has historically played second fiddle to¹⁴ mitigation¹¹ in climate policy — needs to be on a stronger footing¹⁵. Even if emissions were brought down¹⁶ sharply, the consequences of past warming will take years to disappear. India, with a coastline of more than 10,000 km, needs to invest in protecting people who live along the shores, restoring natural barriers¹⁷ against raging¹⁸ waters, improving drainage in urban centres and developing climate-informed¹⁹ agriculture and water management systems. The message from the warming oceans is clear: Improving climate resilience²⁰ cannot be postponed.

EDITORIAL STANCE

EXECUTIVE PERSPECTIVE

URGENT

"warning of immediate danger"

The author adopts an urgent tone to highlight the unprecedented, record-breaking surge in global ocean temperatures. By demonstrating how warming oceans disrupt weather patterns and overwhelm natural buffers, the text argues that climate change has entered uncharted territory. Consequently, the editorial insists that governments must immediately elevate adaptation policies alongside traditional carbon mitigation efforts.
