Triple test, adrift: On the ruling on definition of 'industry'

The Supreme Court's decision on industrial disputes risks undermining crucial labour protections and legislative intent.

August 24, 2026 | 3 min read

Daily Editorial Reader

On August 20, a nine-judge Bench of the Supreme Court of India delivered a judgment on the correctness of the ruling in Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board vs A. Rajappa (BWSSB) (1978). In that judgment, Justice V.R. Krishna Iyer had laid down¹ what was called the "Triple Test" on what counts as an "industry" under Section 2(j) of the Industrial Disputes (ID) Act, 1947 (ID Act). Three conditions were to be met for an industry — a systematic activity, employer-employee cooperation, and production/distribution of goods and services to satisfy human wants other than those that are purely religious or spiritual. Profit motive² was irrelevant³; what mattered in this determination was the nature of the activity, and only "sovereign functions" stood outside it. A five-judge Bench in State of U.P. vs Jai Bir Singh (2005) raised a doubt about this definition and a seven-judge Bench sent it to the current nine-judge Bench. This Bench, led by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, left the Triple Test standing for all pending disputes under the older ID Act, which was repealed⁴ on November 21, 2025 when the Industrial Relations Code, 2020 (IRC) came into force⁵. However, a majority of the nine-judge Bench also ruled that BWSSB will not be a "sheet anchor⁶" for interpreting Section 2(p) of the IRC. That is a mistake. In her dissenting opinion⁷, Justice B.V. Nagarathna held that the reference itself was unnecessary and that the Triple Test requires no interference — a view shared by three other judges. Her reasoning is compelling⁸. Since 1978, and particularly after the liberalisation⁹ and privatisation reforms of 1991, a far higher number of workers have moved to the private sector, out of the security of public employment. An expansive¹⁰ definition of industry, as entailed in¹¹ the Triple Test, is therefore even more necessary now as a bulwark¹² for the worker.

Yet, Section 2(p) of the IRC does not move away from¹³ Justice Krishna Iyer's Triple Test formula in BWSSB and reproduces much of its essence. It is therefore difficult to understand why BWSSB has to be set aside¹⁴ when Section 2(p) itself comes up for interpretation. The Triple Test was also not merely a pro-labour device. An expansive¹⁰ definition of industry brought with it not just the ID Act's protections but also its restrictions — for instance, a regulated route to retrenchment¹⁵ and closure for the employer, and a bar on workers striking at will¹⁶. In essence¹⁷, the Triple Test allowed for industrial peace rather than worker welfare alone. Severing¹⁸ that principle from the IRC, as the majority has done, cuts away¹⁹ the interpretive framework that allowed such disputes to be resolved. With the essence of the Triple Test carried into Section 2(p), it is now incumbent upon²⁰ courts and tribunals to ensure that a change of statute is not read as a change of intent even if the majority judgment has removed the anchor to do so.

AUTHORIAL STANCE

Critical

(expressing sharp disagreement)

The author adopts a critical tone regarding the Supreme Court's majority ruling that disconnects the established 'Triple Test' from the new Industrial Relations Code. This perspective is taken because discarding this landmark precedent weakens key safeguards for private sector workers while disrupting a balanced mechanism for resolving workplace disputes. Ultimately, the editorial contends that judicial bodies must continue preserving the original legislative intent of industrial stability despite the court's verdict.

03 Irrelevant अप्रासंगिक

Core concerns: On the Indian economy, the road ahead

Sluggish industrial core growth signals upcoming economic headwinds and softening domestic consumer demand.

August 24, 2026 | 2 min read

Daily Editorial Reader

The slowdown in the growth of India's core industrial sectors in July was not surprising, with other indicators predicting easing¹ demand conditions as well. Growth in the index of core industries (ICI) slowed to 5.4% in July from 6% in the previous month. This was in keeping with² the Manufacturing Purchasing Managers' Index, which in July eased to its lowest level since August 2021 due to weak domestic demand conditions. While July's growth in the ICI was the second-highest growth rate in the last seven months, the data nevertheless highlight some concerning aspects of the Indian economy. The first has to do with the fact that a large part of even this slower growth seems to be based on a statistical low base effect³. The coal sector, for example, grew at an 11-month high of 7.6% in July, but this was based on a contraction of 12.3% in July of last year. Similarly, the refinery products sector snapped⁴ a three-month streak of contraction to grow at 2.7%, but this too was based on a contraction in July 2025. The iron ore sector, however, grew at a very robust⁵ 29.5%, albeit⁶ slower than a blistering⁷ 44.5% in June. This seems heartening⁸ regardless of the contractions of 16.4% and 7.1% in June and July of last year, respectively. But the steel sector slowed drastically⁹ in July to 2.9% from 5.6% in June and 15.7% in July of last year.

The domestic crude oil and natural gas sectors have been lasting drags on the economy. Both have contracted continuously for at least the last 14 months for which the new series of the ICI has data. India's crude oil imports rose 13.3% in volume terms in July, while Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) imports grew a more marginal¹¹ 1.5%, showing that the economy's appetite is being whetted from abroad. This external dependence¹³ is proving very expensive. High oil prices have meant that the crude oil import bill jumped 41% in July. The 100% tariffs that the United States is preparing to levy on¹⁴ countries such as India that import Russian oil will once again burden Indian exporters. Moving to 20% ethanol-blending has not yet impacted oil imports materially¹⁵. Within the ICI, the only two bright spots of the economy were the cement and electricity sectors. The electricity sector grew at a robust⁵ 9% in July, although this was slower than the two consecutive months of double-digit growth in May and June thanks to the prevalent¹⁷ heatwave conditions in many parts of the country. The cement sector sped up to 13.1%, a welcome acceleration. Such positive trends were few and far between¹⁸. Overall, the Indian economy looks to be in for a period of slack¹⁹ demand, higher costs, and moderating²⁰ growth.

AUTHORIAL STANCE

Cautious

(carefully concerned)

The author adopts a cautious tone to evaluate India's recent economic performance, highlighting that headline core growth is largely inflated by a statistical base effect rather than genuine expansion. Persistent drag in domestic crude oil output combined with external tariff risks indicates a challenging road ahead. By balancing weak domestic indicators against a few temporary bright spots like cement, the editorial stresses the need to prepare for sluggish demand and higher import costs.

01 Easing धीमा पड़ता हुआ

ADJECTIVE NEUTRAL

Becoming less intense, severe, or active; moderating in level or momentum.

Memory Hook: Think of 'ease' — taking it easy, so activity or pressure decreases.

SYNONYMS: softening, subsiding, relaxing

ANTONYMS: intensifying, surging, escalating

03 Base effect आधार प्रभाव

NOUN NEUTRAL

The distortion in comparative growth figures caused by an unusually low or high reference point in the prior period.

Memory Hook: Base = starting point. If the base was very low, even a minor rise looks like a huge percentage jump.

SYNONYMS: statistical distortion, comparative skew, reference shift

ANTONYMS: absolute growth, baseline stability, real change

04 Snapped तोड़ दिया

VERB NEUTRAL

Abruptly ended or broke a continuous run, trend, or streak.

Memory Hook: Think of snapping a stick — a sudden, decisive break in a continuous line.

SYNONYMS: halted, severed, terminated

ANTONYMS: continued, prolonged, extended

05 Robust मजबूत

ADJECTIVE POSITIVE

Strong, vigorous, and healthy; showing solid economic health or growth.

Memory Hook: Sounds like 'robot' — strong, sturdy, and reliable under difficult conditions.

SYNONYMS: vigorous, sturdy, flourishing

ANTONYMS: fragile, feeble, sluggish

06 Albeit यद्यपि

CONJUNCTION NEUTRAL

Though; even though (used to introduce a qualifying statement or caveat).

Memory Hook: Shortened form of 'all be it' — meaning 'even though it be so'.

SYNONYMS: although, even if, notwithstanding

ANTONYMS: furthermore, consequently, moreover

07	Blistering तेज़ तर्रार	ADJECTIVE	POSITIVE
Extremely fast, intense, or energetic in rate, force, or pace.		SYNONYMS: breakneck, dazzling, rapid ANTONYMS: sluggish, plodding, tardy
Memory Hook: Running so fast that friction causes blisters on your feet — blistering speed.
08	Heartening आशाजनक	ADJECTIVE	POSITIVE
Inspiring hope, cheerfulness, or renewed confidence.		SYNONYMS: cheering, reassuring, promising ANTONYMS: disheartening, dismal, depressing
Memory Hook: Giving warmth or cheer to your 'heart', filling you with hope.
09	Drastically भीषण रूप से	ADVERB	NEGATIVE
In an extreme, severe, or strikingly sudden manner.		SYNONYMS: sharply, substantially, steeply ANTONYMS: marginally, gradually, subtly
Memory Hook: Sounds like 'drastic' action — sharp, severe, and sudden.
11	Marginal मामूली	ADJECTIVE	NEUTRAL
Small, limited, or minor in extent, degree, or overall significance.		SYNONYMS: negligible, slight, incremental ANTONYMS: substantial, significant, considerable
Memory Hook: Notes written in the 'margin' of a book — small and secondary to the main text.
15	Materially काफी हद तक	ADVERB	NEUTRAL
To a substantial, important, or noticeable degree; significantly.		SYNONYMS: substantially, significantly, appreciably ANTONYMS: immaterially, trivially, insignificantly
Memory Hook: Material = physical substance; acting materially means making a real, tangible impact.
17	Prevalent प्रचलित / व्यापक	ADJECTIVE	NEUTRAL
Widespread, common, or generally present in a particular place at a given time.		SYNONYMS: widespread, pervasive, predominant ANTONYMS: rare, uncommon, isolated
Memory Hook: Prevail = to win over or dominate; prevalent means dominating a region or time.
19	Slack सुस्त / मंद	ADJECTIVE	NEGATIVE
Characterised by a lack of business activity, demand, or movement; sluggish.		SYNONYMS: sluggish, depressed, inactive ANTONYMS: brisk, buoyant, vigorous
Memory Hook: A slack rope has no tension or action; slack demand means a quiet, inactive market.
20	Moderating धीमा होना	VERB	NEUTRAL
Becoming less intense, extreme, rapid, or rigorous; decelerating.		SYNONYMS: decelerating, easing, tempering ANTONYMS: accelerating, intensifying, surging
Memory Hook: Shifting from high speed to a 'moderate' speed — reducing intensity.
✦ FIXED PREPOSITIONS
Levy on (कर लगाना): To officially impose or collect a tax, duty, or tariff upon a target entity or commodity.
⚡ PHRASAL VERBS
Drag on (बोझ बनना): To act as a persistent handicap, weight, or slowing influence upon something.
🎯 ONE-WORD SUBSTITUTIONS
External dependence (बाहरी निर्भरता): Over-reliance on foreign nations or outside entities for critical resources or economic needs.
💡 IDIOMS & PHRASES
In keeping with (के अनुरूप): In conformity, agreement, or harmony with a prevailing trend or standard.
Whet the appetite (इच्छा को बढ़ाना): To sharpen, excite, or increase someone's desire or demand for something.
Bright spot (उम्मीद की किरण): A positive, successful, or hopeful feature in a generally difficult or disappointing situation.
Few and far between (दुर्लभ / विरला): Not happening often; scarce, rare, or widely spaced out in frequency.

To build Delhi's future, learn from past missteps

Delhi's latest Master Plan must overcome bureaucratic inertia and agency fragmentation to succeed.

August 24, 2026 | 2 min read

Daily Editorial Reader

About 25 years ago, when Delhi's third Master Plan came into effect, the city's population was about 14 million, Gurugram and Noida were fledgling² suburbs, the first lines of the capital's Metro network were being laid, and a CNG policy for public transport had been introduced as a pollution-control measure. Since then, another 10 million people have made the capital their home, civic infrastructure of its neighbouring cities has come under acute³ stress, and the improvement in air quality that Delhi experienced for much of the 2000s and early 2010s has given way to an almost intractable⁵ pollution crisis. Delhi's fourth Master Plan, notified last week, acknowledges these challenges. Its emphasis on expanding public transport, ecological restoration⁶, redevelopment, affordable housing and mixed land use is welcome.

One of the plan's strengths is its recognition that Delhi cannot be built simply by expanding outward. With limited land available within the National Capital Territory, better utilisation⁷ of existing urban land will become more important. The proposed increase in housing supply, including an ambition of roughly 40 lakh additional homes by 2047 at affordable rates, and greater flexibility in development norms to permit higher densities is, therefore, significant. The plan also recognises the futility⁸ of rigidly demarcating⁹ residential and commercial areas. If implemented well, these measures could ease the city's longstanding traffic congestion and improve air quality. Mixed land use, environment-friendly transport, the redevelopment and nurturing¹⁰ of green spaces, and greater attention to the city's water bodies could all contribute to¹¹ improving Delhi's ecological health and enhance the well-being of its residents.

None of these ideas will succeed, however, without confronting the national capital's most persistent governance problems: Municipal inertia¹² and a lack of alignment¹³ among civic agencies, Centre and Delhi government. These deficits were the biggest bottleneck¹⁴ in realising the previous Master Plan's vision of a more sustainable city. Over the past 25 years, research on pollution, Yamuna restoration⁶, waste management, urban flooding and transport development has pointed to the need for concerted¹⁵ action among departments. Metro expansion, for instance, works best when bus routes, last-mile connectivity¹⁶, parking rules and pedestrian facilities are designed around it. Land-use planning and infrastructure development cannot be divorced from¹⁷ the requirements of curbing¹⁸ water logging, while building approvals, fire safety and emergency response require effective information-sharing among construction, fire and municipal authorities. Repeated fire incidents, building collapses and the strain placed on the city's infrastructure during heavy rainfall have exposed the risks of fragmented²⁰ and overlapping responsibilities among its agencies. Delhi has a blueprint²¹ for improving liveability²². It needs to learn from past failures.

AUTHORIAL STANCE
Pragmatic
(practical and realistic)

The author adopts a pragmatic tone to evaluate Delhi's new Master Plan, welcoming its forward-looking urban and ecological vision while highlighting chronic institutional bottlenecks. The editorial contends that comprehensive urban plans inevitably fail without synchronized governance between municipal, state, and central bodies. It concludes by stressing that the capital must actively learn from past implementation deficits to build a sustainable, liveable future.

03 Acute गंभीर या तीव्र

ADJECTIVE NEGATIVE

Presenting or experienced to a severe, intense, or critical degree.

Memory Hook: Acute sounds like 'a cute' needle prick—sharp, piercing, and intensely felt.

SYNONYMS: severe, intense, grave

ANTONYMS: mild, slight, moderate

05 Intractable असाध्य या अनसुलझा

ADJECTIVE NEGATIVE

Extremely hard to manage, control, cure, or resolve.

Memory Hook: In- (not) + tractable (track/steer) = a problem that cannot be tracked, steered, or handled.

SYNONYMS: unmanageable, incorrigible, unyielding

ANTONYMS: tractable, manageable, amenable

07 Utilisation उपयोग

NOUN NEUTRAL

The action of making practical, effective use of available resources.

Memory Hook: Connected to 'utility' — turning available resources into practical utility.

SYNONYMS: employment, exploitation, application

ANTONYMS: wastage, disuse, underutilisation

09 Demarcating सीमांकन करना

VERB NEUTRAL

Setting or clearly showing the limits, boundaries, or separation between distinct zones.

Memory Hook: De-mark = setting clear visual marks for boundaries.

SYNONYMS: delineating, delimiting, bounding

ANTONYMS: blurring, confounding, integrating

10 Nurturing संवर्धन या पोषण करना

VERB POSITIVE

Caring for, supporting, and actively encouraging the growth or development of something.

Memory Hook: Like 'nutrition' feeds the body, nurturing feeds growth and survival.

SYNONYMS: fostering, cultivating, cherishing

ANTONYMS: neglecting, stifling, hindering

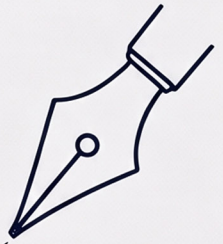

13	Alignmentतालमेल या संरेखन	NOUNPOSITIVE
Arrangement in a straight line, or a state of close agreement and shared policy between groups. Memory Hook: Bringing separate entities onto the same 'line' of policy and purpose.		SYNONYMS: coordination, synchronisation, congruence ANTONYMS: divergence, misalignment, discord
15	Concertedsंयुक्त या समन्वित	ADJECTIVEPOSITIVE
Jointly planned, arranged, or carried out with coordinated effort. Memory Hook: Like a musical 'concert' where musicians play in unified, coordinated harmony.		SYNONYMS: collaborative, co-ordinated, joint ANTONYMS: disjointed, unilateral, fragmentary
18	Curbingरोकथाम या नियंत्रण करना	VERBPOSITIVE
Restraining, checking, or holding back an undesirable phenomenon. Memory Hook: The 'curb' of a road keeps vehicles from sliding off; curbing restrains excesses.		SYNONYMS: restraining, suppressing, reining in ANTONYMS: unleashing, encouraging, fostering
20	Fragmentedखंडित या बिखरा हुआ	ADJECTIVENEGATIVE
Disorganized and broken into separate, uncoordinated parts. Memory Hook: Broken into separate, fragile 'fragments' instead of working as a solid whole.		SYNONYMS: disjointed, splintered, compartmentalised ANTONYMS: unified, consolidated, integrated
22	Liveabilityरहने की अनुकूलता	NOUNPOSITIVE
The degree to which an urban environment is suitable, safe, and comfortable for human habitation. Memory Hook: Live + ability = the capacity of an urban space to support high-quality human living.		SYNONYMS: habitability, comfort, sustainability ANTONYMS: uninhabitability, squalor, inhospitableness
📌 FIXED PREPOSITIONS
Contribute to (में योगदान देना): To help bring about, cause, or advance a specific outcome or condition. Divorced from (से पूरी तरह अलग या विमुख): Completely separated, disconnected, or isolated from something. Strain on (पर भारी दबाव या तनाव): Severe pressure, demand, or tension exerted upon an existing resource or system.
⚡ PHRASAL VERBS
Come into effect (लागू होना): To begin to apply or take official legal force. Give way to (का स्थान किसी और चीज़ द्वारा ले लिया जाना): To be replaced, superseded, or followed by something else.
🎯 ONE-WORD SUBSTITUTIONS
Fledgling (नया और अनुभवहीन): An entity, settlement, or enterprise that is young, newly developed, and inexperienced. Restoration (पुनर्स्थापना): The action of returning something to a former, healthy, or unimpaired condition. Futility (निरर्थकता): The quality of being completely pointlessness or incapable of producing any useful result. Inertia (जड़ता या अकर्मण्यता): A tendency to do nothing or to remain unchanged; sluggishness in administrative action. Bottleneck (अवरोध या अड़चन): A point of congestion, constriction, or blockage that severely impedes progress. Blueprint (विस्तृत रूपरेखा या योजना): A comprehensive design, technical drawing, or systematic roadmap for future execution.
💡 IDIOMS & PHRASES
Last-mile connectivity (अंतिम छोर तक संपर्क सुविधा): The final stage of a transit network delivering passengers directly to their ultimate destinations.
